Captain Sam Sawyer was an industrious Bahamian man who made his living from the sea. Located on Bay Street in historic New Plymouth, his home was built in the 1950's and has been completely remodeled.

In his lifetime, Captain Sam sponged and shark fished. His colorful past even included rum running during prohibition. He was a pioneer in the crawfishing (lobster) industry which is second only to tourism in the Bahamas today. He had an 85' Coast Guard Vessel which was docked in front of his house. When he was not crawfishing, he and his wife Mary took fishing parties out on weekly excursions. They collected and sold seashells, sea fans, conch shells, starfish and coral (when it was legal to do so) to Florida Souvenir shops.

When you stay with us at Cap'n Sam's Cottage, you will feel the history!

Price includes VAT tax and a golf cart. There is a one time cleaning fee of $100.

*No more than 4 adults can stay in the home.
